How to Enjoy Daylight Saving.

To The New York Herald: I note a letter sent you signed Louis M. Elishemius regarding daylight saving, but fall to understand his reasoning.

I would suggest that he buy himself a box of cigars with some of the money saved on lighting bills and take a walk or sit in some park in the daylight each evening after dinner. This would no doubt enable him to appreciate summer-time.

Under Governor Smith's administration the appropriations went up very heavily; under Governor Miller's they have been pulled down by this economy?

Inasmuch as the French Government will not permit the delivery of American tobacco in France under any conditions, the Senate rate of 60 per cent. on French gloves is not unreasonable by comparison. What would Mr. Utard's feelings be if he learned that our Government would not allow the entry of French gloves under any conditions?

During the rectorships of Barclay, Auchmuty, Inglis and Provoost, which period included the Revolution and the fleeing of the royalist rector to Nova Scotia, he said, the growth of the church was seen in the erection of St. George's Chapel, St. Paul's Chapel, St. Mark's Church and the second building on the present site. St. John's Chapel was added during the rectorship of Dr. Moore and Grace Church was founded as an independent parish.

The church built after the Revolution was torn down in 1830 because it had been found unsafe. The present structure was designed by Architect Upjohn. At almost the same time an architect named Renwick was designing Grace Church. "These were the first thoroughly Gothic churches in America," he said. "What they have meant to New York and the nation no words on the same time an architect named." first thoroughly Gothle churches in America." he said. "What they have meant to New York and the nation no words can tell. They have stood the test of time; they are filled with deep religious association and they beckon the hundreds who enter them each day, whether for prayer or for reverent inspection, to the thought of heavenly places beyond their arches and vaulting."

Dr. Slattery said that when Trinity Dr. Slattery said that when Trinity was being built a "rabid critic" complained that instead of facing the church toward the Hudson, which then could be viewed from the churchyard, its "doors face the grime of business in Wall street." "But the Lord put it into the hearts of his servants," he continued, "to keep the oid parish facing the beauty of human need and not some mere sentimental prospect, soon to be shut out by an elevated railway and crowded buildings."

I feel very strongly, however, that the real issue before the people of this State is personal liberty—the right of the individual to live his own life as he sees fit and to conduct his business as to him seems best so long as it is done with fairness to his employees, to the public and to his partners. We have had far too much of Government interference, of attempts by various organizations to oblige the Government to regulate the lives and businesses of citizens and to interfere with the innocent activities and pleasures of all of the people. Most of these laws, as we well know, affect only the poor, and there can be nothing more
